How bush flying won its wings

The first bush pilots were men who had used their wings to fight the German Army. But in Ontario, the enemy was fire . . . forest fire that had killed as many as 224 people in one day, destroyed 7 towns and burned 2000 square miles of wilderness. Author Bruce West describes the battle which the firebirds have fought ever since.

"Bruce West has done a great job telling the story of the first, biggest, and best wilderness fire-fighting organization in the air—anywhere! It's so good I wish I'd done it."
